

Is Your Business Ready for the Next Data Center Boom?

Data center construction is one of the fastest-growing sectors globally. How prepared are you? Take this short journey to discover whether you have the visibility needed to win your next opportunity.

Q1. Has a data center project been announced in your market?

Yes: Great! The race to secure work has begun. Go to Question 2.

No: It could be only a matter of time. Are you ready when it does? Go to Question 2.

Q2. Could you identify the next data center project before your competitors?

Yes: That's a competitive advantage. Go to Question 3.

No: Early visibility can make the difference between winning work and watching someone else do it. Go to question 3.

Q3. Do you know the main companies involved in delivering data center projects?

Yes: Excellent. Now comes the bigger question... Go to Question 4.

No: Identifying developers, contractors, consultants, and suppliers early can help you build relationships before procurement begins. Go to question 4.

Q4. Could you identify which contractors, architects and consultants are active in your target markets?

Yes: Excellent. Go to Question 5.

No: Understanding who is winning projects can help you identify future partners, competitors and opportunities. Go to Question 5.

Q5. Could you identify similar projects before they reach Tender?

Yes: You're in a strong position.

No: That's where connected market intelligence can make the difference

How did you do?

If any of those questions made you hesitate, you're facing the same challenge as contractors, design firms, subcontractors and suppliers around the world: identifying opportunities early enough to win work and deliver it successfully.

GlobalData helps construction teams identify data center opportunities before procurement begins. Through our Construction Projects Database, you can discover new data center developments, identify the owners, consultants, architects, and contractors involved, and track projects as they move through the pipeline. Combined with broader market intelligence and company insights, GlobalData helps you target the right opportunities, engage the right partners, and prepare for contracts with confidence.

Now available

Explore GlobalData's new enhanced Data Center Intelligence: designed to help construction professionals identify opportunities earlier, understand project requirements and connect the dots between developers, infrastructure, power and supply chains: all in one place. Identify opportunities earlier and plan with confidence.

Explore Data Center Intelligence

Register your interest

